

This is your guide to the bumper 7-day, 24 hour broadcast schedule Subcity radio has put together for your aural pleasure this Freshers – all available on subcity.org. Over 60 artists, venues and groups from across the city have got involved to give you a taste of the wonderful creative communities that inhabit this city.

Many of them will be available to interact with during their show in the chatroom (available at subcity.org/chat) so if you are enjoying a show don't be afraid to say hi! All shows will also be available to listen back to after they are broadcast on the performances will be generated live using compositions written in software by a range of Scotland-based experimental musicians, composers and sound artists. PC Music icon LIL DATA has supplied the code we've used for an interactive audio installation that will be running throughout the week and broadcasting on Monday evening. Beth Horseman, James MacFayden, Ollie, Yesno, and website too.

For the most up to date schedule make sure you visit subcity.org/schedule but read on for a quick overview of all that's on offer.

We are big fans of THE CLUB at Subcity – normally you can catch us Out Every Weekend or putting on our own regular Subcity nights. We don't want you to miss a drop of juice from the ripe Glasgow club scene, so we have commissioned 7 of our favorite promoters to host a different RADIO CLUB NIGHT each night of freshers from 10pm-2am. On Monday the Subcity experimental label FANCYYYYY TAPES co-founder Tom Mudd also will provide pieces.

Throughout the day we will welcome a huge collection of people to the station. Here is a quickfire overview of all that's available:

Cherished venues STEREO, THE RUM SHACK and THE HUG AND PINT, inclusive skateboarding collective DOYENNE, exciting new sober queer space QUTO, experimental music festivals RADIOPHRENIA and SOUND THOUGHT, Denniston library's INTERSECTIONAL FEMINIST BOOK CLUB, independent gallery, bookshop and

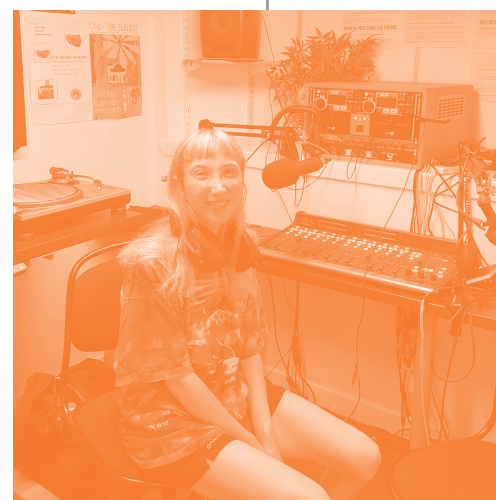

Team will grab the airwaves for the usual blend of anything-goes shenanigans. Tuesday will bring ethical party starters SOUTHSIDE SOLIDARITY to the station. Genuine local legends HEALTHY, responsible for some of the most exciting line ups in the city, will oversee Wednesday, armed with a recent recording of SARRA WILD B2B

LETITIA

PLEIADES. SHAKARA will keep you moving to the late hours on Thursday with their energetic blend of funky club tracks. We print-press GOODPRESS, non-profit project space LUNCHTIME GALLERY, up and coming party starters ANWULI SOUND, Irish dancefloor icon ROO HONEYCHILD, music and dance from the combined forces of the GLASGOW UNIVERSITY DIVESTMENT from ARMS COALITION (GUDAC), GLASGOW REFUGEE & ASYLUM SEEKER SOCIETY (GRASS), and EXTINCTION REBELLION GLASGOW. As if that wasn't enough, Glasgow's finest independent libraries SMALL TRANS LIBRARY, GLASGOW ZINE LIBRARY, and GLASGOW WOMEN'S LIBRARY will be each be broadcasting; along with guest mixes from Subcity alumni, 2CENTAVOS, and PETE NARZISI. Still with us? Well there's more: with shows from GU's Successful Women at Glasgow society (SWAG), Glasgow's occult hard-bass group DOMESTIC

are delighted to be able to welcome back HAWKCHILD

DIY back to the station for Friday's proceedings featuring SCHEMATIC, VOIGHT KAMPFF + more special guests – one for the real ravers. Subcity Radio loves BOOSTERHOOC who you can catch Saturday night with music from their very lovely pals CLEMENCY, ANGEL D'LITE and more. To round off the week HARDCORE QUEER ACTION will take over for a queer as fuck evening of happy-hardcore worship.

After the club catch our AUDIO

INSTALLATION pieces that run every night 2am-9am. These seven-hour

EXILE, and prominent record label SOMA. Rounding off this veritable feast of radio content, we have auditory offerings from musical charity GOOD VIBRATIONS, women's shelter UBUNTU

Don't forget a more detailed and up to date schedule can be found over at Subcity.org. See you there!

Welcome!

Well fuck, 2020 - what a car crash. Despite the chaos of the last 7 months we are so happy to welcome you to our glorious city at last.

While we are still under COVID conditions and exploring the city is more dangerous than usual, we hope the information in this zine will arm you with the local knowledge needed to hit the ground running on arrival.

As you will hear countless times this week, there are few occasions in a lifetime where such infinite possibilities reach out to you as during Freshers week. That said, finding your people, the ones you really connect with, can be really tough - especially with the current lack of the social lube that clubbing can provide.

Over this Freshers week on Subcity Radio, we are showcasing a cross-section of the wonderful creative communities that are what truly make living in Glasgow great. From inclusive Skateboarding collectives (Doyenne) to Happy-Hardcore worshipping Queer club nights (Hardcore Queer Action), experimental music festivals (Radiophrenia) to Interactive Installations (Lil Data Audio Installation) + many more [see the other side for more info].

You belong here in Glasgow. Hopefully Subcity Radio can be part of you finding your place in this community.

Good Luck!

Tom (Subcity Radio Manager)

Who are

Subcity Radio ???

Subcity Radio is an independent, non-profit station based in Glasgow and broadcasting for 25 years. We provide a platform to creative individuals to create forward-thinking radio content. Over 200 contributors make up our community - they are editorially independent and follow no set playlist, all content is their own.

Off-air, we operate as a promoter of some of Glasgow's best club nights, day events, screenings and exhibitions at venues including SWG3, the CCA, Civic House, Stereo, The Berkely Suite, Nice N Sleazy and many more. The acts booked for events are always contributors who have been involved with the station.

Subcity Radio is managed by an ever-expanding family of dedicated volunteers who are always looking out for new recruits.

Join the team!

Subcity couldn't function without our wonderful team of volunteers that work behind the scenes. As many of us at Subcity will attest, the station is a wonderful place to meet like-minded, creative people with an interest in community broadcasting.

We need people with an interest or experience in everything from design and coding to programming club nights and community engagement. Again we particularly encourage women, POC, NEET and LGBT+ folks to apply.

Applications are open September and January

Food!

- Dumpling Monkey (Partick): Best dumplings going, and cheap too: the perfect dinner when you've been working in the library for hours and need something warm and doughy to sate your tired brain.
- Ranjit's Kitchen (Shawlands): The southside is worth exploring on its own, but the prospect of a meal at Ranjit's Kitchen makes the distance worth it. Ranjit's makes Panjabi food that is delicious on its own and even better for the price. Would highly recommend staying and trying all the Indian sweet treats on offer.
- Banana Leaf (Byres Road): Date night? Parents coming to town? Banana leaf is a perfect spot to impress your prospective graft or relations checking up on your hard studying. Specializing in Mayalsian food, we recommend the Eggplant Kung-po style.

Cafés?

- Tchai-Ovna: Hidden away in the back pocket of Otago Lane, Tchai Ovna will prove there are more kinds of tea in the world than you could ever have imagined. It always feels like you've stumbled into someone's front room and sometimes they have small live shows - especially homely in the colder months.
- Project Cafe: We love Project Café purely for the soups they offer that change daily, this wonderful social enterprise and gem of a cafe is situated behind the Art School in the city center(ish). Come here for some wholesome™ content.
- Papercup: A classic, located on Great Western Road, papercup do a tasty cup of coffee and offer delicious food too, perfect for a coffee break in between lectures.

* Thrifting *

- The Glasgow Vintage shop (GWR): Sandwiched between two veg shops on Great Western Road, the Glasgow Vintage Shop is a stellar location to engage in some (probably) healthy retail therapy, they also offer a 10% student discount if you have your uni ID with you.
- Salvation army (Dumbarton Road): Though this particular charity shop has been picked to bits by roving students, it still offers up some gems every now and then. It's also the perfect place to pick up a sofa or bookshelf for your flat that you've just found out is unfurnished, or a lovely piece of artwork to brighten up your prison of a Murano room.
- Glad Rags/Cafe: The Glad Foundation supports all manner of local Scottish charities and offer free/affordable music workshops for people of all ages, not only this but they have a fantastic thrift shop (Glad Rags) which is paired with the equally as fantastic Glad cafe.

+ Staying Safe +

Everyone deserves to be safe inside and out of University and survivors deserve to be beleived and listened to. Unfortunately, like many large institutions, UofG doesn't have an excellent record when it comes to holding the correct people accountable (see Beth Woodhead's excellent articles in the Times and Glasgow Guardian). There are also many aspects of the Glasgow creative and club scenes that need to be better. Here are a handful of resources you can access if you need information or support

- The Get Home Safe: A useful scheme that lets you get a taxi home if you have no money on you by using your student card as collateral - More info on the SRC website.
- Glasgow and Clyde Rape Crisis: Range of services for women available including phone, text and face to face support.
- Not Your Fault: Support group for men (trans, cis or otherwise) and non-binary people
- GU Positive Minds society: A peer mentorship programme for those in need.
- Glasgow Accountability Network (@glaccnet): Instagram page pushing for greater accountability in the Glasgow music scene. They also have an excellent selection of further resources accessible through the link in their bio

- Bars + Pubs -

- Rum shack: One of Southside's best spots for a good cocktail, as the name implies they also have every rum under the sun.
- The Tollbooth Bar: While this pub towards the East End is most definitely more catered for the old man crowd, its got £3 Guinness and a lot of charm
- Sikorski Polish Club: A genuine hidden gem in that it is excellent and difficult to find. Polish pool players rub shoulders with skaters from the nearby Kelvingrove park with a selection of cheap Polish beer and vodka available.
- The Laurieston: A beloved Southside drinking spot.
- Inn deep: Very much a student pub with some of the best dog-spotting about.
- Arlington: It's a good, warm, Woodlands pub - need more be said?
- Hug n Pint: This pub is something of an everyman: not only having a substantial bar, they also offer some of the best vegan food in town and also do live gigs.
